Vintage report

Small quantities, but excellent quality and healthy grapes. The subsequent drought ended at the end of July with heavy rainfall, and there was also significant hail damage in some areas. Initial ripeness measurements on 18 August surprised with very advanced must weights, and the main harvest began extremely early at the beginning of September. Grape varieties with compact bunches and thin-skinned berries, such as Riesling, had to be selected more and more carefully. By the beginning of the second decade of September, the main harvest was often already over.
